About half way between Cumberland and Martinsburg, on the Second Division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, is a picturesque spot known as Doe Gully. There is quite a little hill at this point that the road goes through, and the approaches to this tunnel include several reverse curves. The company has been engaged for the past two months in removing these curves and reducing the grades. The chief engineer says that the improvement will do away with one of the most objectionable pieces of track on the Second Division since Seven Curves were eliminated, and will remove four reverse curves. Treatment of Frecon Trees. The Ohio Experiment Station sends Mrs. Lucinda B. Chandler, of Chicago, is the Honorable President of the Illinois Woman's Press Association concerning the best sat the following: A number of intion; Honorable President of the So- method of treatment of fruit trees which have been injured by freezing. It may be said, in the beginning, that a frosen branch is of no use to the tree, and the best thing that can be done is to remove all parts that are seriously affected. The questions which naturally arise are "When should pruning be done and how much of the top shall be removed?"

It is well to wait until it is possible to determine about how much injury has been done, as shown by the discolored wood and shriveled bark. Usually one warm spell is a sufficient length of time to wait, but it is possible to defer the work too long, as the frozen wood seems to have a deleterious effect upon the sound parts, if not removed before growth commences. During March, and in some cases even as late as April, the pruning should be done. The quantity of wood to be removed will be determined, in most cases, by the extent of the injary; but in the case of peach and some varieties of plum trees an important exception may be mentioned. These ought to be pruned more severely than merely to remove injured wood, except where they are killed to the snow line, and in such a case it is doubtful if they can be saved at all. Peach trees which are from three to five years old and have never been pruned to any extent need special attention. In case the injury to such trees does not extend beyond the twigs and small branches, the best thing that can be done is to cut off all the branches to within one or three feet of the body of the tree. A tree five years old, which has been allowed to grow at will, may have long, slender branches, six to ten feet in length. with most of the fruit-bearing wood near the extremities. Such a tree needs topping, even if a crop has to be sacrificed in order to get it into proper shape. To cut out half the top from such a tree will improve succeeding crops and prolong the life of the tree. This puts the pruning upon a different basis. It is to be done not merely to remove dead wood, but to get the trees into shape for future usefulness. With this object in view the trees are to be so pruned that they can carry the next crop of fruit without breaking down. Of course it will be necessary to cut off limbs of considerable size, in many cases, and it will not be possible to avoid naked stubs. This can be remedied the next seaform. This method of pruning peach have been planted only one or two the entire top away as far as there appears to be injury, and start a new top. If cut off early in the season. however, the stump is apt to become dry, as shown by cracking. To prevent this the end should be covered with wax, or some material that will

American and Japanese varieties of plums should be treated in the same manner as peach trees, and possibly sweet cherries also. Apple and pear trees will probably need no pruning of the kind mentioned.

Bottled Milk in New York. The demand for bottled milk i growing in New York, and to all except the cheap trade milk is supplied in this form, says Country Gentleman. The milk is bottled both in the city after it has been shipped in forty-quart cans, and in the country on the farm. The highest-class dairies have their milk bottled on the farm, but cheap imitators of them bottle it in the city. When bottled on the farm, one-third of the contents of the bottle usually shows cream, and as many customers judge their milk by the amount of apparent cream on the top, this methscarce.
